Glossary of Programs

The Section 8 program helps low- and very low-income families pay their rent. Eligible tenants must pay the higher of either 30% of their adjusted income or 10% of their gross income. Many Section 8 apartments are reserved for the elderly. A small portion of the units are specially designed for the mobility impaired.

The Section 202 program assists applicants 62 years of age or older and/or individuals with a disability. These units are designed for elderly or disabled persons. Some supportive services may be available on the premises.

The Section 236 program serves lower-income families who contribute no more than 30% of their adjusted income or a base rent amount toward rent, whichever is higher.

The Below Market Interest Rate (BMIR) program serves lower-income people by limiting rents based on income limits set by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Rent is not supplemented directly to a complex, but developers are eligible for below market interest rates on their mortgage loan.

The Rural Development (RD) program serves low- and moderate-income people in rural areas. Low-income senior citizens or families paying rents of more than 30% of their adjusted annual incomes can qualify for rental assistance. In properties not offering rental assistance, tenants pay the greater of 30% of adjusted income or the base rent. Low-interest rate loans are made to owners to reduce the rents (including utilities) paid by low-income tenants.

The Public Housing program serves low- and very low-income families with rents based on the same formula used for Section 8 assistance.

The Rental Assistance or Rent Supplement Assistance program reduces rents for low-income tenants in households whose members are either elderly, handicapped, displaced by government action, victims of natural disaster, occupying substandard housing or which are headed by a person serving on active military duty. The rent supplement payment makes up the difference between 30% of the adjusted income of a tenant household and the fair market rent as determined by HUD. (New rent supplement contracts are no longer available; current contracts may be converted to Section 8 assistance.)

Group Homes (GH) are subsidized under the Section 8 Program. The homes are designed for occupancy by individuals who are physically handicapped, developmentally disabled or chronically mentally ill. Group homes administered by KHC are designed only for individuals who are developmentally disabled or chronically mentally ill.

The HOME Investment Partnerships (HOME) program provides funds for tenant-based rental assistance, construction of new rental units or rehabilitation of existing rental units. Requirements vary according to activity.

The Housing Credits (HC) program provides tax incentives for the development of multifamily housing for families whose incomes are less than 60% of area median income.

Apartment units assisted under the programs outlined above are listed on the following pages under their county location. To find out if you qualify for assistance, please contact the manager at the apartment complex where you want to live and submit an application. While all complexes maintain waiting lists, it is necessary to complete an application in order to get on the waiting list and be considered for available apartments in the future.
